Washington, D.C., 20036

Dear Mrs. Gardner:

This is a very belated letter, I'm afraid, but I wanted to thank you very, very much for all the clippings and material you have sent me. I should have written you much sooner, but have been up to my ears in work, trying to digest material and get some writing done---all the time wading through the key testimony and exhibits in the twenty-six volumes the Warren Commission produced.

For your information, I've interested Ramparts in doing a long, long article on the assassination. It will be based largely on the flaws in the Warren Commission's own record and will be aimed at showing factually, by the commission's own testimony, that there had to be more than one gunman---there had to be a conspiracy, a plot. This is, I think, provable beyond a reasonable doubt.

I may go on to a book treatment of this later; I would like to. So, if it's agreeable with you, I will keep all of the material you have sent me in my files for the time being. If you need any of it back or want it returned sooner, let me know and I'll see you get it.

Once more, thanks for the help. Oh, yes, as for Gleason, since you asked me about him in one letter, he's now in Washington as an investigator for the Senate Juvenile Delinquency Committee under Dodd. He's been instrumental in trying to build a barrage against the mail-order gun business in connection with this.

With all best wishes,

Yours truly,

Fred J. Cook
